They have set a 12-hour deadline for their demands to be met, the Iranian national news agency Irna said.

Decision

The hijackers have freed 24 women passengers, the Iranian news agency Irna said.

The agency, gave no other details about the passengers still held on board the plane.

It said the decision followed the efforts of a delegation headed by Iranian Deputy Prime Minister Alireza Moayyeri.

Irna reported that the hijackers said in a statement radioed to the control tower at Mashhad airport: "We ask you Iranian officials to mediate between us and the Kuwaiti government if you want.'

The release of the 17 jailed in Kuwait for political violence is a frequent demand of militants.

The hijackers' statement stressed: "This is our main demand ... we are ready to cooperate with them (the Kuwaiti government) and if they accept our demand we will prove our goodwill.
"If you do not want to mediate, we ask for fuel and other needs and then we will take off," Irna reported. The agency said earlier that the hijackers threatened to blow up the Boeing 747 if Iranian security forces approached it.

It was not clear whether the Iranians agreed to refuel the

But Irna and Tehran Radio, said Iranian security forces surrounded the plane on the tarmac at Mashhad to prevent it taking off.

The flight KU 422 originated in Bangkok. The plane, Al Jabriya, was commandeered three hours after it took off from Bangkok on a flight to Kuwait, with 97 passengers and 15 crew. members aboard.

Freed

One traveller, a Jordanian with "a heart condition," was freed several hours after the plane landed at Mashhad at 7:30 am (0400 GMT), the Islamic republic news agency reported.

The freed passenger, businessmen Mustafa Issa, 42, later appeared on Tehran television. and said there were "six or seven" hijackers, armed with handbombs and pistols.

"They told us: 'Don't worry, we are after redressing our rights denied by the Kuwaiti government.' They tied the passengers' hands and seated them in the rear section of the plane." Kuwait aviation sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the hijacked plane's pilot is an Iraqi and the other crew members are 12 Arabs, a Thai and a Filipino. The co-pilot is a Svrian. The plane was supplied with water and a "charger" to keep its air conditioning working follow-ing demands by the hijackers, the Iranian agency reported.

Problem

The Kuwait government, its relations with Tehran strained over the 7-1/2-year-old Iran-Iraq war urged Iran to handle the incident carefully.

Iran's powerful Parliament Speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said: "Despite Kuwait's insistence we have asked our officials to solve the problem immediately.

Otherwise, he said, the plane must leave Iran. Iranian Prime Minister Hossein Mousavi said Iran was trying to "resolve the incident peacefully to save the lives of the people on board," Tehran Radio reported.

Moayyeri, earlier in the day went to Mashhad to negotiate with the hijackers and requested that all women aboard the plane be released.

Mousavi told Tehran Radio that hijackings were "against humanitarian and Islamic principles and unacceptable as a political tactic."

Initially, Iran refused to allow the plane to land, but it reversed the decision when the pilot said he was running out of fuel, Irna and Tehran Radio said.

After circling for 44 minutes. the plane touched down in Mashhad at 7:30 am (0400 GMT) "solely for humanitarian reasons," an unnamed Foreign Ministry spokesman told Irna.

US, UK condemn hijacking

UNITED NATIONS, April 5, (Agencies): UN Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said he was appalled by the hijacking of a Kuwaiti airliner today and appealed for the immediate release of the passengers. The United States and Britain condemned the hijacking.

"For compelling human reasons, the secretary-general appeals to the hijackers to release immediately the passengers on board," said his spokesman François Giuliani, reading from a statement.

The United Nations has consistently condemned hijacking and taking of hostages as illegal and unjustifiable, the statement from the secretary-general said. The British government today condemned the hijacking. · A Foreign Office spokesman in London said that "this is a totally unacceptable act of terrorism.

He recalled that Britain has in the past condemned such acts against civilian aircraft.

The spokesman pointed out we are extremely worned about the incident." "We condemn this hijacking as we do all such acts of terrorism." Deputy State Department spokeswoman Phyllis Oakley told reporters. "We urge the government of Iran to live up to its responsibilties to resolve the incident and bring the perpetrators to justice."

Elias H. Shiber, country manager for Kuwait Airways, said the Boeing 747 departed Bangkok international airport at 3:30 am Tuesday (2030 GMT) and was hijacked one hour and 50 minutes before its scheduled landing in Kuwait. Shiber released a list of 97 pas-

Bases talks open in Manila

US warns of Soviet threat

MANILA, April 5, (Reuter): Talks on the future of American, bases in the Philippines opened today with US warnings that the. Soviet Union could turn overnight into a powerful military threat to Asian nations.

"It only requires an overnight shift in Soviet intentions; given their capability, to transform (their Pacific) presence into a serious economic and military threat," US Ambassador Nicholas Platt said.

The US and Philippine panels met amid a flurry of accusations over Central Intelligence Agency involvement in the weekend escape of renegade Colonel Gregorio Honasan, the country's most wanted Army rebel.

The American Embassy called the accusations baseless and Platt, opening the talks, reiterated support for President Corazon Aquino. Terms

But Philippine congressional leaders said they would investigate what Deputy Speaker Antonio Cuenco called an American "arm-twisting tactic" linked to the base negotiations.

President Reagan has said the two bases are increasingly. important to regional security and their continued presence has been backed, generally privately, by other independent countries in South-East Asia and by Japan.

The Philippines took a selfconfident tack despite the political embarrassment of Honasan's Saturday night escape from the prison ship where he was awaiting court martial over the bloody coup attempt he led last August.

Foreign secretary Raul Man-glapus, who heads the Philippine negotiating team, has promised to hold out for more compensation and Philippine control over the two bases, which he has said benefit Washington more than Enrile challenged Aquino to call a snap election. In a radio interview today the former Defence Minsiter denied aiding Honasan, a close friend who once headed Enrile's personal security.

The government has banned radio stations from playing taped, telephoned interviews with the coup leader, fearing repetition of a propaganda campain he waged during months on the run last year.

which is linked to the opposition, today ran what it said was an interview with Honasan in which he denied bribing his guards to help him escape. The 14 members of the elite Navy special warfare unit who disappeared with him helped him escape out of conviction, not for money, he said.

Manglapus says the annual $180 million pledge from Washington for the bases covering the five-year period to the end of 1989 is not enough.

Libya pulls out troops from its border with Tunisia

ROME, April 5, (AP): Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khaddafi said he has ordered the dismantling of a military unit formed to act inside Tunisia if the United States used that country to attack Libya, the official Libyan news agency Jana said.

Jana, monitored in Rome, said
Khaddafi also told the visiting Tunisian Prime Minister and his cabinet that he ordered a division of troops withdrawn from the border with Tunisia.

Libya sent the troops to the border because, he claimed, before the new Tunisian government took power Nov 7, the United States intended to use Tunisia to attack Libya, Jana

Tunisian Prime Minsiter Hadi Baccouche and his country's council of ministers came to Libya to attend a discussion of unity with members of Libya's

Khaddafi said he also will insist on "opening the artificial borders with Egypt" and withdraw-ing military forces from there as part of his desire for a unified Arab nation.

"To bolster confidence, fraternity, security and safety among the brothers in Libya and Tunisia. I announce the dismantling of the "Badr" formation, which was to act inside Tunisian Arab territories if America used it against Libya, Jana quoted Khaddafi as telling the meeting.

"We also announce the presenting of the weapons of this formation as a gift to the Tunisian Arab armed forces," Khaddafi added.

"Those who made Nov 7 were among those who prevented America from using Tunisian Arab territories against Libya," said Khaddafi. He was referring to the removal of Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba. who had made his country one of the most Westernised nations in the Arab world.

Zine El Abidine Ben Ali, the Prime Minister and an Army general, claimed the 84-year-old Bourguiba was incapacitated by age and health and took power under a constitutional provision that allows such an act if the President dies or is declared incapacitated.

Khaddafi also told the meeting he had announced the abolition of the border gate with Tunisia. Starting today, said Khad-dafi, "Arabs in both Libya and Tunisia can enter and go out without this gate standing in

The Libyan leader expressed regret that Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak "had rejected the opening of the borders."

He said there had been no formal reaction from Hussein to the new US initiative, launched last February in response to unprecedented Palestinian riots in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

KUWAIT PRESS DIGEST

An area of rivalry

A LOCAL newspaper has charged the big powers of keeping the Mideast region as an area of rivalry for selling their various types of arms and testing their efficiency.

Al Rai Al Aam in an editorial urged the Arab countries to be aware of this fact and to uunify their stands in confrontatin of this exacerbating danger.

Arms sales rivalry between the "Soviets, the Americans, the Europeans, the Chinese and the Koreans" will not come to an end as those arms sellers have been absorbing the region's revenues and natural resources, said the paper.

The paper concluded that what is currently going on in the Gulf, Lebanon and Palestine confirms the fact that the big powers have rendered the Mideast an area for marketing their fatal weaponry.

Shultz' tour lashed

MAGIC SHOW

TWO local dailies lashed out at tours of US Secretary of State George Shultz in the Middle East, affirming that the US views toward the Palestinian cause are a replica of Israeli ones.

Al Watan described editorially goals of Shuttz's tour as a way to "forcing Palestinians to bow to the Israeli will, by asking them to clearly recognise resolution 242, which is totally biased to the Zionist entity and opposed to the Palestinian rights."

The paper called on Arab states, included within Shultz's tour, to adopt a firm position on the contradictions in the statements made by the US Secretary of State.

Meanwhile, daily Al Anbaa said that Shultz has nothing new to relay, affirming that the US policy toward the Middle East remains unchanged.

Justice ministers council session

Law issued on personal status may be accepted at pan-Arab level

KUWAIT's Minister of Justice and Legal Affairs, Dhari Al Othman, present chairman of the sixth session of the Arab Justice Ministers Council which concluded deliberations here on Monday, said yesterday the session had accomplished its mission in all fields.

In a press conference, the minister said Kuwait's hosting of the session was a good opportunity of a great benefit at both the national and pan-Arab levels. It has come as a link in the chain of the prominent positive roles that Kuwait pursues under the leadership of HH the Amir.

Al Othman underlined that the three-day session achieved two major legislative accompli-shments in the history of the Unified law For the first time, Al Othman added, the council has issued a law that is suitable to be implemented at the pan-Arab level which is Kuwait's document on Arab unified law for personal status.

No plan to increase electricity charge

KHALED Al Badawi, the Director of the Public Relations Department at Kuwait's Ministry of Electricity and Water, said that the ministry had no intention of increasing the electricity and water charges as had been rumoured.

Al Badawi added that the ministry had completed laying water pipes in a number of areas in the country and that owners of buildings had the option to connect to the water supply.

He said the ministry would continue its system of calculating the average power consumption over a one year period and would charge users based on this average. He added that bills could now be paid at local banks as well as ministry offices. He explained that this made it easier for the ministry to control payments made and to maintain accurate records.

Al Badawi said that the system of averaging consumer consumption and billing twice a year had improved the promptness with which bills have been paid.

Sudanese message

DOHA, April 5, (Kuna): Sheikh the Qatari Amir, received today a verbal message from Sudanese Prime Minister Sadiq Al Mahdi on bilateral relations.

The message was conveyed by Sudanese Minister of Social Care and Alms, Reshidah Ibrahim during a meeting.

He said this law derives its rulings from the Islamic sharia (jurisprudence) to tackle problems in the contemporary Arab world. Second, Al Othman added, is the issuance of a full and comprehensive plan for justice work at the Arab level, which also held the title of Kuwait's document on the Arab plan for joint justice

Al Othman added that the session also showed concern for the first time to international law in view of its links to Arab contemporary causes.

Uprising

The Minister noted that the council has also issued detailed statements that included the main points of the Amir's inaugural speech.

He pointed out that the statements focussed on discussing legal aspects of the Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories and the sanctity of the holy shrines and the right of Saudi Arabia to take all measures to ensure the security

The statements also focussed on the Iraq-Iran war from a legal point of view where they stressed the necessity for implementing the security council's resolution 598 in accordance with order of articles and noted that the party rejecting the resolution should bear legal consequences.

Concerning the acquiring of missiles by Saudi Arabia and Israel's threat to destroy them, the minister noted the council has stressed that the international law gives the Saudi kingdom the right to defend itself and hence it is entitled to obtain weapons that would facilitate that defence.

He said the council also touched on the legal situation resulting from closure of the Palestine Liberation Organisation mission in the United Nations, noting, "what has happened is not related in one way or another to any legal basis.

Kuwait will not tolerate aggression

KUWAIT'S Defence Minister Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmed has announced that Kuwait will not tolerate any infringement on the territory of the country or assaults on any military or civilian installations.

"From now onwards, Kuwait will not be lenient in dealing with any object or unidentified movement intending to infringe on our territory or attack on military positions or civilian targets," the minister stated in the latest issue of a Kuwaiti magazine.

The minister was referring to the recent Iranian gunboat attack on the offshore island of Bubiyan in which two soldiers. were wounded.

Morale Nawaf, statement to the magazine, commended the high spirit and morale of the Kuwaiti defence forces adding that Kuwaiti youth have learnt to sacrifice from their ancestors and are ready to shed their blood to defend the coun-

The minister cautioned that the Kuwaiti tolerance was misinterpreted as a sign of weakness but was in reality motivated by adesire to contain the armed con-

Spielberg's recipe to beat the blues

By Shaun Seekins

BATTERIES Not Included is a very silly film, maybe that's why lenjoyed it so much. A film to take you away from the cares of the moment and remind you of the true values of life. Presented by Steven Spielberg and directed by Matthew Robbins, it brings together the husband and wife team: Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy. They were tempted to drop plans for a stage play and do the film. As Cronyn says "This is not the best of all possible worlds, but miracles come into it occasionally and we need to be reminded of that and I think it's wonderful to be in another feel-good picture to follow Cocoon.

The story is about a group of apartment owners in an old brownstone building who are being menaced by developers who want to demolish and rebuild. The police don't want to know and it rather looks as if Franc and Faye (Cronyn and Tandy) are going to end up in an old people's home. Then, help arrives from a very unexpected source, from a galaxy far away on the other side of the universe, in the shape of tiny living spaceships. It seems that when the thugs employed by the developers smash something up, the tiny ET's can mend just as fast, consternation all around! Soon they start to reproduce and it looks as if all will be well, but, of course, nothing is as smooth as that.

Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn in Spielberg's film.

Super special effects and brilliant photography make this a must for the kids.

Cry Freedom is Richard Attenborough's impressive new film recounting the una-shamedly political story of Steve Biko (Denzel Washington), who was to die in police custody, and the crusading white newspaper editor, Donald Woods (Kevin Kline), who struck up a dangerous friendship with the articulate black activist.

taken up with Wood's reeducation under Biko's gentle tutelage. He learns at first hand some of the problems of blacks the Republic. The second half, following Biko's unumely death (officially designated hunger strike), traces Wood's painful decision to quit the country and his subsequent escape with his family in possession of an explosive manuscript detailing Biko's death. Given the subject, which may not appeal to audience searching escapism, the film is doing quite well on the circuits.

in Good Morning Vietnam director Barry Levinson (Diner) underlines how so many little incidents make up a war, how one man's crusade for the ideals he considers right has little chance of success against military censorship. He casts Robin Williams as a brash radio DJ transferred to strifetorn Saigon as part of a moralebuilding effort sponsored by an eccentric general (Noble Willingham). As the new morning man, Williams proceeds to shake up Armed Forces Radio with rapid-fire wit and harddriving rock.

This doesn't go down too well with the entrenched station manager (Bruno Kirby), a Mantovani man who likes his humour simple and his music sedate. But it's the new disc jockey's opposition to the military's censorship of the news that brings him into serious conflict with his superiors. After barely escaping a Vietcong attempt to bomb a serviceman's bar, he is forbidden by his station manager to mention the incident on air. When he rebels at these arbitrary restraints his superiors pull the plug. A semidocumentary style of presentation and a script that wanders off-line sometimes makes this a doubtful for a long theatrical run, but, nevertheless, an entertaining film worth watching.

House of Games is a highclass psychological thriller. Dr Margaret Ford (Lindsay Crouse) is a successful psychiatrist and author of a bestseller about obsession, Driven. She's so icily cool and controlled, you just know that here is a career woman as repressed. yet potentially volatile, as some of her trickiest patients. A highly confrontational session with one, a compulsive gambler, sets off the fuse. He owes $25,000, begins to wave a gun about, so to quieten him, she agrees to help sort out the debt.

This leads to a meeting with Mike (Joe Mantegna) at the low-rent gaming parlour of the title. Mike is a shady conman who, at Ford's insistence. begins to unveil for her the full range of his shadow games. His maxim is: "Don't Trust Nobody", but now the doctor is driven and her obsession with Mike's world must inevitably. lead into more and more deceit. Very good performances from the main actors and a strong story make this a film well worth watching.

Date with an Angel is a good new comedy starring Phoebe Gates and Michael E. Knight. Whoopi Goldberg's excellent new film Fatal Beauty has arrived and is available now.

Sports fans can watch the very entertaining Pro-Celebrity Golf from Scotland and Basketball, Bulis vs Celtics and Nuggets vs Blazers. Deep Space 26 and Zombie

High are new horror films and there is a very interesting semidocumentary Hail Hail Rock and Roll featuring Eric Clapton. Chuck Berry and many

Israel living in true fear

YASSER Arafat has been the true symbol of the Palestinian cause for the past 20 years. With his characteristic scarf, he has become Palestine itself.

Many Palestinians have appeared and disappeared because they exploited the Palestinian cause for their own personal gain.

No one has any doubt about Arafat's patriotism. He can count on this and thereby embarrass Israel by demanding direct negotiations; sitting with its leaders under the supervision of a neutral party.

Since no one has any doubt about Arafat's true nationalistic feelings the negotiations can be direct. After all, Israel has been telling the world that it would give the Arabs anything they want as long as there are direct

There is no difference if Arafat speaks through Russia and Israel speaks through the US since they will sit at the same table exchanging smiles and laughs.

Nothing will destroy Israel more than peace. This is well understood by the Israeli leaders, especially the older ones who think that by insisting on direct negotiations they will avoid peace or delay the process.

During the Israeli Prime Minister's visit to some of the areas of the West Bank on Saturday, Shamir arrogantly stated that Arabs will gain nothing from Israel through violence and that if they want something they would have to sit at the negotiation table — the same table that Israel has rejected for 40 years. It has refused negotiations while all the time speaking of peace to the world, trying to show the world that it is a peace-loving country.

What would happen if the Palestinian leader publicly tells Shamir to sit at the negotiation table while the uprising continues?

In his recent international televised interview, Arafat said he recognises the international legality of Israel, which means that he acknowledges the world recognition of Israel. Although these are not the true feelings of Arafat, they reflect the attitude of the world in which he is

We should always remember that by restricting Israel within certain borders we have the beginning of the end of Israel; in spite of the arrogance of Shamir and Sharon.

The nature of the State of Israel is such that it cannot. survive in this region. All signs indicate that Israel will vanish one day - it could happen tomorrow, it could happen after a hundred years.

Yasser Arafat will greatly embarrass Israel if he declares that he is ready for direct negotiations. This declaration would signal the beginning of the end for this artificial state.

It is important that the uprising continue because Israel is today living in true fear.

A new Gulf war flash-point

By John Owen-Davies

HABUR, Turkey, (Reuter): Flanked by majestic snow-capped peaks and fertile lowlands fed by the Tigris River, this remote frontier crossing between Turkey and Iraq appears a picture of calm and serenity. It is not.

Five craters gouged by Iranian bombs in a Turkish field 800 metres (yards) from two concrete bridges spanning the Hezil River show it is yet another flash-point in the Iran-Iraq war.

The bombs were dumped by a jet that flew into a hail of flak from camouflaged Iraqi anti-aircraft guns on the opposite bank. Turkey has threated similar action if any other Iranian jet violates its airspace.

Iran aimed to destroy the bridges, main transit point for trade between Turkey and Iraq, worth $2.1 billion last year, and for European traffic bound for Baghdad.

"We were lucky." said the driver of one oil tanker lorry who had been waiting to enter Iraq when the jet struck on March 24. "A few hundred metres closer and we would all have been

Trucks

Up to 5,000 trucks cross the border each day on the single direction bridges. About 300 are lined up on either side at any one time waiting to pass customs.

To the left are the peaks of northern Iraq and the fast-flowing Hezil River marking the border, over which the Iranian pilot started his daring low-level bombing run.

On the other side the Tigris plain stretches into Syria, about 40 km (25 miles) away.

Tall observation posts manned by para-military gendarmerie troops line the muddy Turkish bank of the Hezil which flows into the Tigris.

One such posts and a nearby Kurdish mud and brick village came within a split second of destruction in the Iranian raid.

There is little sign of activity on the Iraqi side, apart from the bustling Al Halil border post. Ominous grass mounds, some with sandbagged emplacements, line sections of the river.

The shanty'town of Habur, thriving on the traffic spawned by the 7-1/2-year Gulf war, is about 240 km (140 miles) west of the nearest point on the Iranian border and 1,120 km (700 miles) from Ankara, Turkey's capital.

Export

Garages, tyre-repair shops, fast food restaurants and basic hotels line the route through the town, two km (1.2 miles) north of the crossing point.

Most vehicles from Iraq are laden with oil, destined for export outlets on Turkey's Mediterranean coast, from the Iraqi oil centre of Kirkuk, 320 km (200 miles) southeast of Iraq, whose main Gulf outlets were blocked early in the war, exports up to 1.5 million barrels of oil per day (bpd) through two pipelines to Iskenderun bay and about 70,000 bpd by road.

Pro-Iranian Kurdish guerrillas in Iraq have attacked Kurdish convoys, some of them taking basic goods from Europe to

The 580-km (360-mile) road from Habur to Iskenderun, hugging Turkey's border with Syria for much of the way, is a driver's nightmare with dense and lumbering traffic.

It is similar to the road through Jordan from Aquba port, Iraq's other main transit point for goods.

Ambush

The favoured spot for drivers is a modern restaurant and motel, complete with mosque and sauna, at Nusaybin.

Here they swap stories and warn colleagues coming from other directions about particular hazards of the day — from speed traps to the possibilities of guerrilla ambush

Millions of dollars raised to support uprising

By Warren Richey

BAHRAIN: Palestinians and other Arabs in the Gulf region have raised millions of dollars in humanitarian aid to ensure that the ongoing uprising in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank is not snuffed out.

The fund-raising efforts including donations by Gulf leaders, dinners, poetry readings, rallies, and neighbourhood collection boxes — have given new momentum to Palestine Liberation Organisation offices in the region. And they have helped revive hope of a Palestinian homeland among the hundreds of thousands of expatriate Pales-tinians living and working in the

The PLO, which maintains diplomatic missions in each of the Gulf states, has responded to the public outrage over Israeli actions by establishing special funds to support the uprising. Officials stress that rather than bullets and bombs, all aid for the uprising is earmarked to help families cope with the continuing Israeli occupation.

"By medicine and food, not by arms," says Rafiq Al Natsha, director of the PLO office in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. "We are looking for peace. We are seeking the minimum rights of our people," he adds. "But until now we have only received an answer from the Israeli Army by their machine guns, tanks, gas bombs, and helicopters.

Massacre

"This is not just a slaughter against Palestinian civilians," he says "but it is a big massacre against peace.

Overall there are an estimated 576,000 Palestinians living in the Gulf region. Kuwait has the largest population of Palestinians with roughly 350,000. Saudi Arabia has 170,000 and there are about 35,000 Palestinians in the United Arab Emirates.

In addition to appeals for don-ations, PLO officials are asking Palestinians and other Arabs to "adopt" a family in the occupied territories to help create a basic support network for the most needy of the 1.5 million Palestinians living under Israeli occupa-

Many of those families already rely on remittances sent home by relatives working temporarily in the Gulf. But PLO and other Arab officials are concerned that Israel is making it increasingly difficult for such financial assistance to enter the troubled areas and reach the Palestinian families that need it.

And just how the money raised in the Gulf will enter the territories isn't clear.

"We think the Israelis are deliberately following a policy of forcing Palestinians out," says Lakhdar Ibrahimi, assistant secretary-general of the Tunisbased Arab League. "It is really remarkable that all these numbers have stayed in their country.

"What is happening now in the territories is giving a new lease on life and a new fresh start for the struggle of the Palestinian people," he says.

Donations

Ibrahimi, on a tour of Gulf states to assess grassroots and other efforts to aid the Palestinians, says current donations have surged, triggered primarily by graphic television news coverage of Israeli acts of brutality against stone-throwing Palestinian

In Kuwait, about $9 million has been raised from private sources during the past two months, according to Saleem Zanoun, deputy speaker of the Pales-tine National Council. He adds that $2 million each has been raised in both Qatar and Bahrain. Other PLO officials in the region say that $3.7 million has been raised in Saudi Arabia, and more than $1 million has been collected from private sources in the United Arab Emirates.

While such grassroots con-tributions have been significant, PLO chairman Yasser Arafat has complained that contributions by Arab governments in support of the uprising have been less than expected. The complaints were aimed at states that have balked at making contributions above their regular payments to the PLO called for under the 1978 Baghdad summit agreement.

The issue is a sensitive one, as the 1978 agreement is set to expire this year. In addition, unlike previous fund-raising efforts by the PLO, the current call for aid comes at a time of depressed oil prices. Most Gulf states are considering borrowing to cover this year's expected budget deficits.

In the meantime, both Saudi Arabia's King Fahd and UAE President Sheikh Zayed are said to have made significant personal donations. And Kuwait and Iraq are reported to have made multi-million dollar contributions through the United Nations.

Question remains whether Washington will stand by its friends

Tests of US fidelity

By John Hughes

WASHINGTON: The United States is heading into a couple of important tests of its fidelity.

The question is whether Washington will stand by its friends in Afghanistan and Nicaragua — both groups bat-tling Marxist regimes — or whether political considerations will cause their abandonment.

In the past, circumstances have conspired against some freedom-inspired fighters who threw in their lot with the US, but who were jettisoned in time of After the ill-conceived Bay of Pigs venture, Cubans who had fancifully sought to free Cuba from Fidel Castro were left to fend for themselves on a beachhead overrun by Dr Castro's superior forces. And in Vietnam, when an exhausted America withdrew, thousands of Vietnamese who had enlisted in the fight against the communist North were left to the far-fromtender hands of the Marxist victors. Boatloads of Vietnamese refugees still flee from Hanoi's rule over their country.

Now it is the turn of the Afghans, who have resisted occupation of their country by the Soviet Army, and of the Nicaraguans who have taken up arms to break the grip on their country of the Marxist-enamoured Sandinistas.

In Afghanistan, the bele-aguered Soviets are about at the end of their military tether, having been held to a standoff by the anti-communist guerrillas. A few hitches are stalling their promised military withdrawal. One is President Reagan's insistence that they stop military aid to the Afghan forces they will leave in place before the US stops its aid to the freedom fighters. This should be a staunch US position. To do otherwise would be unconscionable.

What the Soviets are trying to do is shape the future of Afghanistan — to win politically what they have failed to win militarily. Of concern to Moscow is any perception of "weakness" in Afghanistan. That, the Soviet leadership fears, might encourage ethnic separatists in the Soviet Union, or hearten Eastern European countries, to follow courses more independent of Moscow.

But the US has no obligation to bail out the USSR in Afghanistan. The American obligation is to the guerrillas who have fought so bravely, and to the 5 million Afghan refugees who have been displaced from their country. They should not be left to the retribution of a Soviet rump regime in Kabul, with a continuing supply of military aid from Moscow.

The Afghan guerrillas are tough, cantankerous and not-necessarily-democratic medley. But they deserve better than to be left without bullets to face the guns of Afghanistan's Soviet puppets.

Unless the US role in Nicaragua is to end in infamy, the same must be said of the Nicaraguan Contras. Just days before the rescheduled resumption of cease fire talks with the ruling Sandinistas, they faced a new Sandino military offensive. They faced it without the support of the on-again, off-again US Congress, which has alternately voted aid and then cut it off, depending on its whim. Curren-tly the aid is turned off, and des-pite Ronald Reagan's urging, Democratic leaders are not inclined to vote on a new pack-

Like the Afghan freedom fighters, the Contras are quarrelsome at times among themselves. and have been guilty of excessess and human rights abuses — just like the Sandinistas. The Sandinistas have resurfaced their "turbas" --- gangs of rock-throwing thugs used to break up opposition political meetings. The "tur-bas" were curbed in 1984, but have apparently been given the Sandinist green light to operate again.

Though the Confras may not be ideal democrats, they too deserve some consistency of US support,

NEW DELHI, (Panos): Villagers in the north-east state of Rajasthan who have been facing the effects of three to five years of prolonged drought, are pressing for a speedy restoration of successful, traditional methods of storing water which "progress" has let fall into decay. Unfortunately, the villagers' enlightenment seems not to have reached the authorities who control the resources and technology needed to restore traditional water-collecting and storage methods. Rather, the authorities are determined to press ahead with plans to install piped water - one of the major reasons why the traditional methods have fallen into decline. Rajasthan's dry climate has not changed drastically, but in the past even if it did not rain for two or three years, the 'baolis' (large open wells with steps), 'talays' (huge open concrete-lined tanks), 'kuinyas' (small dug-outs where rain water is collected), and 'tankas' built into the basement of most houses, collected sufficient water to see people through the dry years.

Disuse But, as piped water supply became both available as well as fashionable, the old, time-tested methods of catching and storing water fell into disuse. Villagers who previously collected and stored their own water became increasingly more dependent on the government for piped water. Today, as elsewhere in the session in Nairobi.

became the dumping-grounds for the city's garbage. What is worse, the provision of piped water has led to the over-supplies.

During 1987, Bikaner received
238mm of rain, compared with a normal rainfall level of 260mm. Although this was not much of a reduction, water has become a scarce, precious commodity in the walled city of Bikaner. When their taps are dry, people now have to pay Rs 10 (75 cents) to fill up their overhead tanks.

Yet towns like Jodhpur and Udaipur would not be facing water-shortage crises if surface water was still collected and Famine Udaipur — ironically known as the Lake City — is facing an unprecedented water samine. The Fatch sagar and Pichola lakes which met all the city's water needs in the past, have almost dried up.

In Jodhpur, the piped water supply is available once in two days. In Beawar, it comes once in four days. On the day when there is water in the taps there is a mad scramble to fill up buckets or any other receptacles to hand. The other days of the week water has to be brought in by rail in tank-

Science and Environment. Ten years ago talavs and baolis were part of the social structure. Fairs were held near them and water was considered too precious to be wasted. Rain was considered the purest form of water and often small temples were constructed near the watercollection points. Neither animals nor men with shoes were allowed to pollute these water sources. In western Rajasthan "tanks" were an integral part of every house. Houses had sloping roofs and channels and pipes that would collect every drop of rain water and take it straight to the concrete tanks at the base of the Tankas could also be constructed in the courtyard, or in community tankas in the centre of the village. They were usually kept covered and locked so that neither children nor animals could fall into them.

Habit

The traditional Rajasthani habit of using water sparingly is also dying out. In the old days people would bathe in huge praths' (huge iron plates in which wheat flour is kneaded) or at special places where the waste water could be collected and used later for cleaning the houses, or for bathing the animals. Visitors to a village would be offered only one jug of water. If they were still thirsty they would be offered talay because there was no water for the sacred bath.

In Jodhpur there were 43 talavs, 42 baolis and 72 open wells but they have all fallen into disuse as the dream of piped water supply became a reality and various building operations were undertaken in the catchment areas. The Kijalane talay of Jodhpur has become dry because of the sandstone mining carried out within its 32 sq km catchment areas. Since the Rajasthan government earns something like Rs 20 million ($1.5 million) from mining, it is reluctant to give it up for something as unlucrative as collection of water.

Drought However, following a severe drought in 1985, the people of the city organised themselves and cleaned up Tapi Baoli which is now supplying them with water. Four more baolis and 10 open wells have also been renovated and are in use again, and, due to public pressure, seven more open wells are currently under repair.

HOUSEWORK is one of those tiresome activities which gets a lot more attention than it deserves. At least, that's my attitude when I'm the one who has to do it.

During those dark periods of my life when the burden of housework has fallen squarely on my shoulders. I have tried to introduce time management to the chore: kitchen in the morning, bathrooms on Mondays, vacuuming on Tuesdays, windows on Wednesdays, etc. etc. This, in theory, would keep the house clean and still allow me to engage in more rewarding pursuits. Unfortunately, the wretched house won't cooperate. The kitchen which gleams at 9.00 am looks like the site of a foodthrowing, dish-dirtying contest twenty minutes after the school bus arrives. The rest of the house doesn't seem to fare much better, although I can't say for sure since the place is so littered with discarded clothes, books, and associated juvenile junk that it's impossible to accurately interpret the true state of affairs under the astonished at how many hiding places there are within the confines of a smali bathroom.

My stomach muscles churned every time I opened a cupboard door. What surprise would I find? What wouldn't be there that should be there? I quickly learned to look for tarragon vinegar where the floor cleaners were kept, and to find olive oil in the refrigerator, but there were too many inconsistencies to keep ahead in the game.

Apparently, even the maid ran out of ideas sometimes. By accident, I discovered that she stored "miscellaneous" bits and pieces under the beds. These treasures were as diverse as window screens. dirty clothes, unopened mail, and the latest newspapers and magazines.

Just as I had reached the point where I became uncontrollably twitchy in anticipation of her arrival. the maid informed me that she would have to give up her job in our happy home because she wanted to return to her ailing mother.

'What a thoughtful, noble gesture." I told her, clasping my hands and casting my eyes upwards in silent thanks.

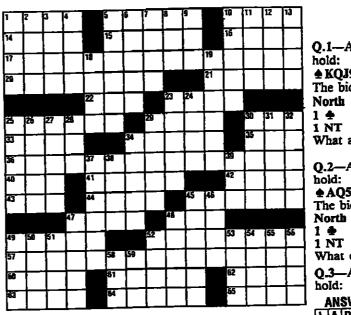

"But, Madam, will you not be upset having no one to clean for you?" she asked in mild astonishment.

"Of course it will be an inconvenience. Nevertheless, your first duty must be to your mother. I shall be very sorry to lose you, but go with my blessing, dear

To the older generation, he is the ideal son. To young women he is a romantic figure. To his peers, Fox represents a guy they would like to know. Both in cinema and television, the diminutive 26-year-old Fox has captivated enormous and loyal audiences. What is the secret of his remarkable success?

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD, (UPI): Not since Mickey Rooney in the 1930s and '40s has the American public enjoyed a more universal love affair than with Michael J. Fox.

Both in motion pictures and television. Fox has captivated enormous and loyal audiences playing an '80s version of the all-American boy — even though he is Canadian.

Like Rooney, who is now approaching 70, the 26-year-old Fox is diminutive (5-foot-4), energetic and a superlative

His impact on the public was instantaneous with his role of Alex Keaton in the weekly sitcom, Family Ties, which made its debut on NBC in September 1982 when he was 20 and playng a 16-year-old.

Since then, Fox has starred in four movies that have grossed almost a half-billion dollarsprobably surpassing Rooney's box-office records — thanks in no small part to inflated admission prices.

In his long career Rooney made more than 100 movies and starred in a couple of unsuccessful TV series, Mickey (1954-55) and One Of the Boys

Fox and Family Ties, on the other hand, has been a smash hit for six years, almost always among the top five shows in the Nielsen ratings.

The busy young actor is flattered by comparison to Rooney and said he is an admirer of the Mick and has seen many of his old films on the tube. As did Rooney, Fox has established his own production company, Snow Back Productions, with headquarters at Paramount studios where Family Ties is taped.

The other day Fox sat behind his glass-topped desk and surveyed his new office. He was wearing a sweatshirt, blue jeans and jogging shoes.
"Llook around these offices and wonder when some big executive is going to come in and kick me out," he said, lighting a cigarette. His company's name, Snow Back, refers to his origins. Canadian immigrants with US work permits have been referred to by some as snow-backs, a sharp contrast to the derogatory label of 'wetback' for Mexican immigrants.

Of his growing popularity with moviegoers, Fox said, "It can be fun on the celebrity side of things, but it can be a nuisance too. Being accepted as part of the American family is

But Fox is unsure whether his image — as Alex or the bright young guys he plays in movies — isn't confused with the sort of young man he is in real life.

His current favour with audiences will soon be tested with the release of his new pic-ture Bright Lights, Big City, in which he plays a cocaine addict.

His role does not simply shatter his scrubbed image. It is more complex than that. Fox says the film suggests that even the clean-cut, highly motivated boy next door can become a It represents a major turn in

Oscar eludes O'Toole again

Nominated seven times without result, Peter O'Toole hasn't 'the faintest idea' why the coveted award continually slips through his grasp.

By Vira Lynn Jones

NEW YORK, March 15, (Reuter): Peter O'Toole sat groggy eyed in an early morning interview, chain-smoking cigarettes for breakfast.

The 55-year-old actor was mumbling that he would 'love to have an Oscar' but the seven-time nominee didn't have 'the faintest idea' why the coveted award continually slipped through his grasp.

Even though The Last

Emperor is in the running for nine academy awards, more for his portrayal of Reginald 'R.J.' Johnston, the Scottish tutor of China's young

But, the lanky Irishman said, he was not concerned with accepting roles that might give him a shot at an Oscar. He's just happy with an opportunity to act. "Whether it's radio, television or theatre," O'Toole said,

"I'm from a generation of actors who have multiple forms of expression. But the form I prefer is the theatre." O'Toole was in New York on a break from his forthcoming movie comedy, High Spirits, being filmed in Ireland and England. "I'm playing an Anglo-Irish owner of a rather dilapidated castle," O'Toole said. "He's looking for ways of cheering up the castle. So, he comes up with the idea of inhabiting it with ghosts." As for The Last Emperor, O'Toole said he decided to tackle the role because "it was a remarkable yarn — a Cinderella fairy tale in reverse."

"It was an amazing story set in this 15th century Ming maze of palaces," he said. "To Westerners, it was an oriental fairy tale that took place in a span of a few years of our lifetime."

Johnston became Emperor

Pu Yi's tutor when the boy was 13. He remained as teacher. friend and adviser for 12 years. during the collapse of the Chinese empire. During research for Lawrence of Arabia (1962) — one of several memorable roles that earned him an Oscar nomination but not the award - O'Toole mastered bedouin tribal customs, attained some fluency in Arabic, and learned to ride a camel He approached his three-month role in China, however, more subtly, delving into Chinese history books in order to understand the complexity of his role and the country.

"Every day I felt there was another book to read to shed some light on this ignorance (about China) descending upon me," he said.

O'Toole said of Johnston:
"He was a senior colonial figure who disgraced himself by publishing a pamphlet in Chinese attacking the role of the missionary.

"Johnston wanted to be Governor of Hong Kong, but it looked like he had blown his career. He was given an opportunity to mould the great radical forces in China by becoming Pu Y's tutor refer for you look at the man Peter

O Toole, he would love to have had such an opportunity.'

After receiving acclaim and four Oscar nominations in the 1960s — for Lawrence of Arabia, Goodbye Mr. Chips, and The Lion in Winter O'Toole's career faltered.

In the 1970s, he got another Oscar nomination for The Ruling Class, but during most of the decade, hits were outnumbered by flops.

Doctors also told O'Toole that he would be dead within a few weeks from blood cancer, an incorrect diagnosis.

O'Toole lit another cigarette and said slowly, as if reciting Shakespeare, "One's redemp-tion is a good role in a good play which is successful."
"For Johnston, his role seemed to have been blown. He found redemption by becoming the Emperor's tutor.

"In my case or in any actor's case, if one has had a lean time, if the opportunity comes along to be in something excellent and it is an excellent work, then redemption comes."

His own redemption began in the 1980s with The Stunt Man which brought him a sixth Oscar nomination. Number seven came for My Favourite Year in which O'Toole played Alan Swann, a swashbuckling, boozy matinee idol.

Last Emperor brought O'Toole to China for the first time. He called it bewildering."

"I sensed each day, more and more, my own ignorance of the place. My choice was to stand there, mutter a few phrases and use my ears, eyes, nose and the bicycle," he added.

He said he spent his spare time in the museums and galleries of Peking and managed a three-day trip to Qu Fu, birthplace of the 'ole boy' — his description of the Chinese philosopher Confucius.

Additionally, gout may be brought on by any break or change in a person's normal routine. For example, an episode of acute infectious illness may

IT is now five and a half months since the October crash stunned world makets with its sudden ferocity. A large part of the alarm was caused by the fact that when international, electronically powered, panic set in, no market was immune from its effects.

The old conservative wisdom of spreading one's investment throughout the world's major markets, London, New York, Japan, proved to be a fallacy. They all fell simultaneously, along with Sydney, Madrid, Paris, Kuala Lumpur and almost everywhere else.

Some, like Tokyo, didn't fall quite so far as others, but even that gave little comfort since in purely economic terms, Japan was obviously much more overpriced than London, yet the latter dropped further than almost anywhere else, save Australia.

Plan to set up special fund to guarantee investments

MUSCAT, April 5, (Kuna): The Inter Arab Investment Guarantee Corporation has endorsed the idea of establishing a special fund to guarantee investments of Arab and Islamic banks, companies and financial bodies.

In its 15th annual meeting held last night, the corporation's board of directors has decided to sign an agreement with the UN Development Programme to cofinance a study, through which the corporation intends to evaluate some selected Arab investment projects.

But by April 1930, that rally, like the present one, had stumbled fitfully to a halt. London has dropped 100 points in the last

In Professor J.K. Galbraith's classic study, 'The Great Crash', he outlines what happened next. In June 1930 there was another steep drop in share prices and thereafter the market dropped week by week, month by month and year by year until the end of June 1932.

Will it happen again? If I knew the answer to that I'd be on the verge of making a fortune. The plain truth is that nobody knows for sure. His logic is that if you do, you may occasionally lose, but when Even Barclays De Zoete Wedd, the stockbroking arm of Barclays Bank, has issued a warning circular entitled, 'Second Leg of the Bear Market 1989.

On the other hand, the risks are high that the whole system will go into another steep dive. That's the dilemma, but there is another, crucial factor.

if that should happen, then even the depressed prices right after last October will begin to look like stratospheric heights.

So what are the signs to look out for? In British terms, if the market FTSE 100 Share Index falls below 1,700 then look out, a

If a new American President starts making serious noises about keeping out cheap foreign imports, that's a clear recipe for global disaster. Even if he merely raises bond rates significantly, that could be enough to suck money out of the equity markets and trigger an avalanche.

Venezuela hopes to expand reserves by 2bb in 1988

CARACAS, April 5, (Reuter): Venezuela hopes to increase its proven oil reserves by two billion barrels to 60 billion this year. through new discoveries and secondary recovery in existing fields, the Ministry of Energy and Mines announced today.

The ministry said in its annual report 20 new test wells will be drilled this year in an effort to increase output of light and medium crudes. Venezuela's reserves are currently dominated by lowerpriced heavy and super-heavy crudes. Exploration will centre on eastern Monagas and Sucre states, an the area south of lake Maracaibo, the traditional centre of Venezuela's oil industry. The programme is expected to cost approximately $142 million. the ministry said. Exploration in recent years has led to the discovery of 8.6 billion barrels in probable reserves of light and medium crudes, comparable to England's North Sea oil fields, Energy and Mines Minister Arturo Hernandez Grisanti said on March 14. Plans call for total crude 1988 output to remain at 1.571 million barrels per day (bpd), Venezuela's Opec quota. But condensates, which lie outside the quota, are to increase from 165,000 to 190,000 bpd, and liquid natural gas production will go from 94,000 to 98,000 bpd, the ministry said, raising total production to 1.859 million bpd. Last year's total production was 1.789 million bpd. Venezuela's crude exports are slated to remain the same at 1.520 million bpd.

ABU DHABI, April 5, (Kuna): The leader of the visiting Argentine trade delegation and governor of Cordoba Dr Eduardo Angelos declared here yesterday that his country's exports to the world last year totailed $8 billi

He added, in an interview with Kuna here, that agricultural and animal produce and industries based on both formed 75 per cent of the exports, or around $6 billion.

Angelos, who is nominated for the forthcoming Argentine presidential elections in September next year, added that 30 per cent of the Argentine work force is engaged in the animal and agricultural sectors. He noted that his current tour was the first of its kind and aims at strengthening relations with countries visited namely Nigeria, India, Saudi Arabia, Egypt and the UAE.

The governor, who will conclude his tour by a trip to Kuwait, added that he is accompanied by 111 members including, 28 government officials and 83 representatives for the private sector. Angelos expressed satisfaction toward results of his tour, pointing out that it opened a channel for talks with those countries and for boosting contacts.

Invitations were extended to government and chamber of commerce and industry officials to visit Boenos Aires to discuss expanding political and economic ties, he elaborated. Angelos underlined that volume of his country's commercial exchange with the Arab countries was very slim and noted that he was met with a similar desire to increase that quantity, on part of Arab officials. The Cordoba governorate is populated by 2.8 million out of the total Argentine population of 30 million.

Plan to set up joint projects

LAGOS, April 5, (Opecna): Opec member Nigeria and neighbouring Niger are to set up joint projects of mutual benefit and strengthen their joint commission on cooperation in order to facilitate the establishment of ventures. A communique, signed by Nigerian President Ibrahim Babangida and his Niger counterpart Ali Saibou, said that the two countries will also cooperate in messing their common water resources.

According to the communique, issued in Abuja at the end of Saibon's two-day visit, the two presidents also expressed confidence in the Economic Community of West African States (Ecowas) as "the viable institution for the attainment of economic development and social progress in the West African sub-region."

The two leaders also urged Ecowas members to honour their ness and to ensure that it met the objectives for which it was established. The communique expressed concern over Africa's economic problems aggravated by famine, fall in commodity prices and foreign debt which adversely affected African development programmes. Expressing support for the position of the Organisation of African Unity (OAU), the two presidents stressed that the solution to Africa's debt problems should be addressed. sed at the multilateral level.

Fed official wants to step up fight against inflation rates a bit to nip price pressures in WASHINGTON, April 5, (Reuter): US Federal Reserve Board governor Wayne Angell said today the central bank should pursue a cautious monetary policy aimed at curbing inflation considerably in the months ahead.

His comments suggested the Fed, whose six board members are all Republican appointees, was willing to raise interest rates this election year if necessary to stop inflation from bubbling up. economists said.

The consumer price index, measuring inflation at the retail level, was increasing at an annual rate of 3.9 per cent, Angell noted. Although this was down from 4.4 percent at the end of 1987, the Fed needed to tell people that it intends to make further gains, Angell told a US television

"It seems to me it's very important that we stay in that three per cent range this year, and I'd like to see the CPI get back into the two per cent range by 1989," he Angell's emphasis on inflation weekend as investors braced for a tightening of credit conditions by the Fed to prevent the economy from overheating. Lower In late January, the Fed pushed interest rates lower to help an economy that was slowing because of October's stock market crash, which left piles of unsold goods on shop shelves.

But most economic statistics since then have been surprisingly strong, culminating with Friday's news that businesses hired another 262,000 workers last month on top of the 517,000 jobs created in February.

Explosion The unemployment rate fell to 5.6 per cent in March, the lowest level this decade, and Fed officials fear an explosion of wage costs if the job market tightens further. Higher interest rates would also support the dollar, Angell said. He described the present exchange rate as 'about right'.

Independent bank vital to control inflation in China

BEIJING, April 5, (Reuter): Delegates to China's parliament have called for a truly independent central bank, which they say is vital to end four years of excess issue of money and to control inflation, the nation's number one economic enemy.

The Financial Times reported on Friday that 42 delegates had proposed to the National Peo-ple's Congress (NPC) real independence for the People's Bank of China, and more NPC supervision of national finances.

It was unclear how much support there was for the proposals at the Congress, which is now in session in Beijing.

Chinese economists said the proposal reflected alarm in banking circles over what they see as irresponsible monetary policies in face of mounting inflation. Some delegates said the bank had been unable to curb excess printing of money since 1984, a major factor in the country's worst inflation since the communists came to power in 1949. Problem In his keynote speech to the

NPC, acting Premier Li Peng

said the "outstanding problem in the excessive rise in commodity A survey of city dwellers conducted last October and appearing last week in the economic daily found that 83 per cent were unhappy about price increases, a higher proportion than five months earlier, and that 45 per cent thought the increases had caused their standard of living to fall. In an editorial, the Financial Times said one main reasons for the price increases and inflation was an increase in money supply averaging 21 per cent a year from 1984 to 1987, far more than the average 13 per cent rise in industrial output.

This meant too much money in people's pockets and too much spending power, which pushed up prices.
The NPC delegates said the central bank had been unable to strictly control the issue of money and had to print money to finance the state deficit and government . construction Responsible They proposed that the People's Bank be responsible for management of China's currency and credit.

A Chinese official said the bank at present was not independent at all but simply a tool of the state council (cabinet), which ordered how much credit and money to issue.

LONDON, APRIL 5, REUTER - SHARE PRICES REMAINED WEAKER IN LATE TRADING BUT WERE SUBSTANTIALLY ABOVE THE DAY'S LOWEST LEVELS AFTER A FIRM OPENING ON WALL STREET BUOYED SENTIMENT. EARLIER, STERLING'S RISE TO ABOVE 3.13 MARKS HAD WORRIED DEALERS THAT PROFITS OF MAJOR EXPORTING COMPANIES WILL BE HIT.

THE POUND IS EXPECTED TO PUSH THROUGH 3.15 IN THE NEAP FUTURE, AT WHICH LEVEL A HALF-POINT CUT IN U.K. BASE LENDING RATES WILL BECOME A FIRM POSSIBILITY. AT 1530 GMT, THE FTSE 100 INDEX STOOD 8.4 POINTS OFF AT

1,734.1, HAVING TOUCHED A LOW OF 1,725.4 AROUND MIDSESSION. VOLUME REMAINED LOW WITH ONLY 256 MLN SHARES TRADED BY 1500 GMT FOLLOWING LAST WEEK'S STATEMENTS BY U.K. CHANCELLOR WIGEL

LAWSON AND BANK OF ENGLAND GOVERNOR ROBIN LEIGH-PEMBERTON, HOWEVER, NOTHING IS CERTAIN ON THE DIRECTION OF U.K. INTEREST RATES, DEALERS ADDED. BOTH LAWSON AND LEIGH-PEMBERTON UNDERLINED THAT LOW

INFLATION WAS THE MAIN TARGET AND THAT STERLING'S RECENT GAINS WERE PART OF THIS. THIS HAS LED MANY TO BELIEVE THAT THE U.K. AUTHORITIES WILL NOT RUSH INTO LOWER INTEREST RATES IF THE POUND CONTINUES TO RISE IN THE NEAR-TERM.

EXPORTERS WERE LOWER BUT FALLS WERE TRIMMED. GLAXO WAS DOWN 4P AT 988 AND ICI LOST 7P TO 973. BOTH WERE 17P OFF EARLIER.

London Gold

LONDON, APRIL 5, REUTER - GOLD BULLION FINISHED THE DAY AT 451.50/452.00 DLRS AN OUNCE, DOWN THREE DLRS FROM THE PRE-EASTER CLOSE AND COMPARED WITH THE MORNING FIX OF 456.00 DLRS. THE MARKET BEGAN ON A STEADY NOTE, REACHING A HIGH OF 456.75

DLRS, BUT SELLING APPEARED AFTER THE MORNING FIX TO PRESSURE PRICES, DEALERS SAID. THE DOLLAR'S SLIGHTLY STEADIER TONE AFTER THE EASTER BREAK PROVED A DEPRESSING FACTOR FOR PRECIOUS METALS, PROFIT-TAKING IN NEW YORK KEPT PRICES EDGING LOWER, BUT

DEALERS SAID THE DAY'S ACTION WAS LARGELY FEATURELESS, WITH TRADING SLOW TO REVIVE AFTER EASTER.

London Money Market

LONDON, APRIL 5, REUTER - A FRESH SURGE IN STERLING ON THE FOREIGN EXCHANGES FAILED TO INSPIRE THE U.K. MONEY MARKET AND RATES ENDED LITTLE CHANGED FROM PRE-EASTER LEVELS, DEALERS SAID. MOST DEALERS SAID THEY WERE SURPRISED AT TODAY'S FLAT PERFORMANCE, ESPECIALLY AFTER THE BULLISH ATMOSPHERE AT THE END OF LAST WEEK WHEN THE POUND RE-ESTABLISHED ITSELF ABOVE 3.10

SUT THEY PUT IT DOWN TO THE NUMBER OF PARTICIPANTS, BOTH RETAIL AND MARKET PROFESSIONALS, STILL ABSENT AFTER THE HOLIDAY AS A RESULT, NO MOMENTUM DEVELOPED TO PUSH RATES DOWN DESPITE THE POUND MOVING UP TO 3.1350 MARKS, THEY SAID.

Wall Street Market Report

New York, April 5, Reuter — Wall Street blue chips rallied from a support level to a psychological resistance level, analysts said. A higher dollar helped a technically oriented market gain, they said, as did Fed Governor Angell's comment that a report of more jobs doesn't imply higher inflation. The Dow Jones industrial average gained 20 points from 1980 support to the 2000 area, where it hit resistance. Woolworth, one of the Dow 30, gained 3-1/4 to 57-3/8 after a jump of nearly nine yesterday. Gains follow news that a group led by the Dart chairman seeks up to 15 pct of Woolworth.

TOKYO, APRIL 5, REUTER - SHARE PRICES CLOSED LOWER BECAUSE INSTITUTIONAL INVESTORS WERE NOT FULLY COMMITTED DUE TO A LACK OF FRESH FACTORS, AND BROKERAGES HAVE COOLED DOWN ACTIVITY FOR FEAR THAT THE MARKET MAY RISE TOO FAR TOO FAST. "IF YOU LOOK AT IT TECHNICALLY, THE FUNDAMENTALS ARE STILL

GOOD," SAID TORANGBU SUGAI, VICE PRESIDENT OF EQUITIES AT SHEARSON LEHMAN BROS ASIA. "INVESTORS ARE JUST THINKING OF SITTING BACK AND ASSESSING THE SITUATION."

THE NIKKEI INDEX SHED 19.94 POINTS, OR 0.08 PCT, TO 26,315.35. IT ROSE 53.17 POINTS ON MONDAY. FALLS LED RISES THREE TO TWO IN VOLUME OF 700 MLN SHARES AGAINST 1.1 BILLION.

SECURITIES HOUSE, RAILWAY/BUS, COMMUNICATIONS, RUBBER, OIL, ELECTRICAL, BANK, GAS, PRECISION INSTRUMENT, AIRLINE AND SERVICE ISSUES LED THE DECLINES.

FOOD, FISHERY, CREDIT/LEASE AND RETAIL SHARES ADVANCED SLIGHTLY.

WALL STREET'S SEVEN-POINT FALL OVERNIGHT AND CONTINUED WARINESS OVER THE DIRECTION OF THE DOLLAR PROVIDED AN UNEASY BACKDROP TO TODAY'S MARKET, BROKERS SAID. WHILE THESE ARE NOT THE PRIMARY REASONS FOR SLUGGISH TRADE, THEY HAVE HELPED CONTRIBUTE TO INSTITUTIONS' HESITANCY

TO BUY AT CURRENT LEVELS, BROKERS SAID.

ALTHOUGH INDIVIDUALS HAVE BEEN ENTHUSIASTICALLY BUYING, THERE HAS NOT BEEN ANY COMPELLING REASON FOR INSTITUTIONS TO FOLLOW SUIT. THERE IS SOME SPECULATION THAT THEY ARE WAITING FOR PRICES TO EASE BEFORE COMING BACK IN, BROKERS SAID.

IN ORDER TO USHER IN THE NEW FISCAL YEAR ON A BRIGHT NOTE BROKERAGES HAD BEEN GENERATING A GREAT DEAL OF TRADE. BUT WITH A SUBDUED RESPONSE FROM LARGE INVESTORS COMBINED WITH CONCERN OVER THE PACE AT WHICH THE MARKET HAS BEEN RISING, THE BROKERAGES HAVE TAKEN A BREATHER FOR THE TIME BEING.
"FUNDAMENTALS HAVEN'T CHANGED," A BROKER SAID. "THE MARKET IS LOOKING AROUND FOR NEW LEADS."

KUWAITI dinar deposit rates eased slightly yesterday after the Central Bank briefly offered three-month funds at six per cent, but liquidity remained

LANDIS PS

Dealers said the market was quiet with virtually no offers except for overnight deposits until the Central Bank intervened around noon.

One-month funds were bid at 6-1/2 per cent in the morning, then slipped to 6-3/8, 5-7/8 per cent before rising again to 6-5/8, 1/8 per cent from Monday's close of 6-3/4, 1/2 per cent. Funds

Tomorrow-next, spot-next and one-week funds were bid at 10 per cent with no offers. Dealers said banks that intended to take three-month Treasury Bills due to be issued today appear already to have sufficient

By early afternoon, three-month funds were quoted at 6-1/ 4, 5-3/4 per cent, six-month at 6-1/8, 5-5/8 per cent and one-year at six, 5-1/2 per cent.

The Central Bank dinar exchange rate was softer at 0.27292/302 to the dollar from 0.27258/68 on Monday Commercial banks quoted spot rates of around 0.27304/14. Meanwhile, Saudi riyal interbank deposits held little changed yesterday in a relatively quiet market, with activity picking up in the fixed periods as offshore banks borrowed funds to take advantage of arbitrage opportunities.

Dealers said fears of a riyal devaluation reemerged after a report in the Middle East Economic Survey (MEES) newsletter on Monday quoted a Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency official as saying plans for a government bond issue had not been finalised. During the past few weeks the market has been dominated by speculation over the issue of up to 30 billion rivals ($8 billion) worth of bonds, aimed at part-financing the kingdom's 1988 budget deficit.

There has been little official word since the plan was unveiled by Riyadh last December. "People are keen to produce cheap dollars in case the rival is devalued and because they expect dollar interest rates to rise," one dealer said.

Short-dated funds traded at seven per cent for Thursday/ Saturday and at six per cent for Thursday/Monday. Gulf banks are closed during the Muslim Friday weekend. One-week funds dealt at 6-1/4 per cent.

One, three, and six-month deposits were steady at levels of 6-9/16 7/16, 6-7/8, 3/4 and 7-1/4, 1/8 per cent respectively.

The spot was also steady at 3.7504/08 to the dollar.

Mexico lowers oil prices to Japan

MEXICO CITY, April 5, (AP): The government oil monopoly Pemex announced yesterday that it lowered the price of its light isthmus crude by $1.62 a barrel to Japanese customers in March.

Pemex said in a statement that the price of the light oil was $13.86 a barrel in March, down from $15.48 a barrel in February. For the heavy Maya brand, the price of Japanese clients tumbled from $12.83 a barrel in February to $11.20 a barrel in

The statement attributed the price changes to "the declines in the general level of prices in the international market."

Opec output within quota ahead of meeting

LONDON, April 5, (Reuter): The Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries, whose ministerial price committee meets on Saturday to discuss weak oil prices, kept within its self-imposed output ceiling in March, a Reuter survey showed today.

Opec, curbing output to support prices, set a ceiling last December of 15.06 million barrels per day (bpd) for the first six months for 12 of its 13 members, to defend a price at $18 a barrel.

Iraq refused to sign because of its rivalry with Gulf war foe Iran. Iraq which has no quota has been producing about 2.5 million bpd since then. Analysts

The survey, based on data from oil traders, shipping sources, industry executives and analysts in the Middle East, Europe, Asia and Latin America showed Opec's 13 members pumped an average 17.4 million bpd last month, slightly above February's estimated 17.3 million.

But analysts said Opec output needed to be cut slightly if it was to match likely demand in the second quarter of 1988.

Since the end of last year Opec output has fallen around 1.5 million bpd and held at around 17 to 17.5 million in the first three months of this year.

Despite this, prices fell to 16month lows by the start of last month, with Brent oil from the North Sea at $14, due to high stocks and weak demand after a mild northern hemisphere winter, analysts said.

Markets have somewhat recovered since then, with Brent now around $15.50, buoyed by the prospect of a meeting of the organisation's price committee to take place in Vienna.

"The meeting will review the agreement with a view to deciding what action if any requires to be taken to further strengthen the market," Opec President Rilwanu Lukman said. Several market analysts said they believe that second quarter demand is unlikely to exceed 17 million bpd and feel Opec needs to cut output by 500,000 to 800,000 bpd if it wants to take prices back to its reference price of $18 in time for a scheduled full ministerial meeting in June.

Call In February, Algerian Mini-ster Belkacem Nabi said group production should be cut to below 17 million bpd. Meanwhile, senior Gulf oil sources ruled out today a call by an Opec pricing committee, slated to meet in Vienna this

Saturday, to brake the current slide of oil prices on world mark-.

"It is unlikely that Opec ministers would hold an extraordinary conference before the biannual ordinary meeting next June," the sources told Kuna.

They reasoned the unlikelihood of the call on fear that the emergency meeting would not meet with success, and subsequently lead to further chaotic prices of their oils, officially pegged at $18 per barrel.

The committee, set up during the organisation's ordinary meeting last July in Vienna, has the powers to call an extraordinary ministerial conference if it

The sources indicated that the committee would confine itself to drafting a set of recommendations which would be submitted to member states during visits immediately after its meeting.

According to the sources, the committee would urge Opec countries to show greater adherence to the organisation's agreed price structure, not giving in to customers' demands for discounts even if this meant reducing their oil outputs.

The sources pointed out that the committee would not seek binding decisions on Opec countries to reduce their current actual productions by a certain percentage, but rather call for abidance by official quotas within the 15,06 million barrels a day aggregate ceiling, excluding Iraqi production, to end current Opec overproduction and bolster prices."

They indicated that the committee could send a minister or two on visits to major non-Opec oil producers to seek their cooperation with the organisation's efforts to jack up oil prices through lower production levels.

Oil prices have declined due to a market glut caused by lower demand ahead of the summer season against global overproduction by about two million barrels a day than market needs. Most Opec members, the sources went on, prefer to meet in Vienna on June 8 to review developments on world markets in light of the report to be submitted by the pricing committee which would include the views of organisation members and other producers on how to reverse the Top Texan official seeks rise in oil prices

NEW YORK, April 5, (Opecna): The head of the Texas railroad commission which set oil prices in and beyond the state prior to 1960 announced at the weekend he would be seeking a meeting with Opec officials this week to discuss the stabilisation of oil

Commissioner Kent Lance said in Dallas that he wanted to encourage Opec to raise crude oil prices "to between $18 and 24 a barrel," though he admitted he had little leverage to exert. -

Lower

Analysts recall that lower oil prices have adversely affected the economy of oil-producing states in the United States, forcing them to impose stringent measures and cut programmes to balance their budgets.

Daniel Yergin, president of the Cambridge Energy Research Associates, said any such meeting between the Texas commis-"a significant, symbolic event" though it would have little impact on prices.

A marketing loan allows farmers to repay price support loans at market rates, thus protecting farm income while releasing crops onto the market.

It was championed by Senate Agriculture Committee chairman Patrick Leahy, who returned from a recent trip to Geneva angered by what he saw as European Économic Community (EEC) unwillingness to reform their agricultural policy.
"We believe the marketing loan is a very effective weapon against Europe," said an aide to Leahy. In its original form, the trigger would have been hard to bypass if a stalemate existed. But house of representatives negotiators resisted, saying they did not want to commit themselves to a potentially expensive farm policy in advance of renewing US farm programmes in 1990.

Endorsement

The compromise version retained the triggered loan, but added an alternative expansion programme, to be adopted if the marketing loan was deemed harmful to the trade talks.

They also gave the president final authority to implement

"This is really giving congressional endorsement to something that's already happening anyway," said an EEC diplomatic source.

The Agriculture Department has aggressively used its export subsidy authority, although it has only implemented marketing loans, for cotton and rice, when ordered to by Congress.

The diplomatic source said he doubted the triggered marketing loan provision would ever take effect, but he gave the expanded export subsidies a greater

Achievement

Even if the provisions remain unused, they could still strain the GATT talks, he said. "Nobody likes to negotiate with a threat hanging over you," he said.

The Reagan administration's major achievement in the trade. bill was receiving authority to strike a deal at GATT, Tank said. The authority enables the United States to commit to a a GATT midterm review in December. The US goal at GATT has been to eliminate farm subsidies worldwide.

The Agriculture Department

remains opposed to the triggered provisions because they force the president to decide whether to implement them, an Agriculture Department official said. "If I were President I would rather not be forced to make that decision," the official said.

One of the bill's best features is that it is not as protectionist as it could have been, said Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federa-

Dollar steadies

Sterling extends gains

LONDON, April 5, (Reuter): Sterling made new gains on foreign exchanges today, adding to pressures on the dollar, currency dealers reported.

Although the dollar has steadied after a slip last week, dealers saw it as being at risk of further falls. Jitters over what it might do contributed to weakness in the stock markets.

Wall Street stocks slipped seven points yesterday and Tokyo closed a shade lower today. London reopened down eight points after a four-day Easter break today and continental European bourses were mixed.

"The market will push on sterling until it gets a real slap in the face," said a US bank dealer in London, where the pound gained to almost 3.13 West German marks, up half a pfennig from the pre-Easter close, and touched $1.8872.

"That really means only a cut in the interest rates will stop the rise," the dealer said. Policy

Others said an apparent policy defeat for Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who is willing to see sterling rise as a counter-inflationary measure, had for the moment ruled out interest rate cuts.

The dollar meanwhile traded quietly just below 1.66 marks and around 124.50 yen in Europe today. It had rallied a little in Asia, although Tokyo dealers said they still thought it would fall further. It is down from 1.69 marks and 127 yen a week ago. "The dollar's recent fall is based on bullish sentiment for the yen and sterling due to their strong economy, not on any par-ticular news," said a dealer at first Chicago Bank in Tokyo, adding: "So the dollar's downward trend will persist."

In Europe, however, several dealers said they were somewhat. less 'bearish' about the dollar

Tokyo share prices, which have been moving tantilisingly close to their record high in recent days, fell marginally.
"If you look at it technically, the fundamentals are still good, said Toranobu Sugai, vice president of equities at Shearson Lehman Bros Asia. "Investors are just thinking of sitting back and assessing the situation." Lower

The key Tokyo stock index shed 19.94 points, or 0.08 per cent, to end at 26,315.35. Brokers cited unease over Wall Street's decline and the dollar.

Sydney's main share index closed 2.6 points down at 1,412.8 due to profit-taking. But brokers said there was reasonable support for leading stocks. London shares were marked lower across abroad front when trading resumed after the Easter holiday following the weaker closes on Wall Street and in Tokyo. London's most-watched barometer, the FTSE index of 100 British blue chip stocks, opened at 1,734.4 which was 8.1 points below last Thursday's Worries that the pound would continue to appreciate, and hit British exporters' profits, was again a cause for concern.

West German shares began little changed, dealers in Frankfurt reported. "The market is really is quiet. There is no stimulus to move decisively in either direc-tion," one said. French shares began slightly lower with the 50share bourse index opening 0.3 per cent down.

Steady Crude oil prices were steady ahead of a meeting of the Opec pricing committee next Saturday. North Sea Brent blend for May loading was quoted at $15.60/70 a barrel, just five cents lower than last Thursday.

Mexico cheapest and Norway most expensive country for US employers

WASHINGTON, April 5, (AP): For a US employer who measures his labour cost in dollars, Mexico was the cheapest country last year and Norway the most expensive, according a Labour Department report.

The report released yesterday takes into account the decrease in the price of the dollar, and of changes in local pay rates. The cost of social insurance and other benefits are also figured, but not the relative efficiency of workers in different countries.

In dollar terms, costs in Mexico dropped to $1.37 an hour from $1.49 in 1986. Thoughwages more than doubled in Mexican pesos, the price of the peso dropped so fast on foreign exchange markets that the cost of labour in dollar declined.

Benefits

Wages and other benefits for workers also rose in terms of Brazilian cruzados, but in dollar terms there was a decline to 1.49 from 1.60 an hour because of the low value of the cruzado.

Brazil and Mexico are the two biggest debtors among developing nations, a situation that tends to drive down the price of their currencies. They were the only two where the costs were reported to have dropped in the year.

Norway's average compensa-tion of 118.52 kroner ($17.58) an hour was nearly 13 times that of Mexico, measured in dollars. The US average of $13.46 was almost 10 times Mexico's. Low wage costs in other countries have long been used by American politicians as the reason for protecting US industry from imports. In recent years labour unions have argued that low labour costs in other countries encourage US employers to set up production there rather than at home.

Congressional leaders have agreed on a trade bill that would curb some imports but their yer sion has not yet been approved by either house and there is a threat of a veto from President Ronald Reagan.: One provision would authorise the president to consider denial of internationally recognised labour rights, such as the right to organise labour unions, as an unfair trade practice" for which he could reduce a country's exports to the United States.

Labour in the industrialising countries of Asia and Latin America remained less than a fifth as costly as in the United States. Costs in Hong Kong, South Korea, Singapore and Taiwan rose by only 1 to 4 per-centage points relative to those in the United States.

Of 22 countries, eight had costs higher than the 13.46 an hour in the United States. They were, in addition to Norway: Switzerland, 25.46 Swiss francs ($17.06); West Germany, 30.26 marks ($16.83); Sweden, 96.07 krona ($15.14); Netherlands, 30.61 guilders ($15.11); Belgium, 563.37 Belgium francs ($15.08) and Denmark, 99.20 kroner ($14.49).

All 23 countries for which the Labour Department had statistics showed an increase of comcursing the terms of the past

States. "Japan's relative cost level in 1987 (of 84 per cent) greatly exceeded the previous peak of 72 per cent reached in 1986," said the report from the Bureau of

It noted that Japan's level was now close to Canada's. The increase was due largely to the rise of the yen against the dollar. This was also the reason for most of the rise in European costs, though they were also raised by cuts in working hours by Norway and Denmark, the report said.

WORLDSTOCKROUNDUP

SYDNEY, April 5, (Reuters): The Australian sharemarket ended slightly lower following profit-taking in most sectors. The All Ordinaries closed 2.6 points lower at 1,412.8.

TOKYO: Share prices closed lower because institutional investors were not fully committed due to a lack of fresh factors. The Nikkei index shed 19.94 points, or 0.08 per cent. to close at 26,315.35. SINGAPORE: Prices closed marginally higher over a broad front on light buying interest and sporadic bargain-hunting, after recent declines. The Straits Times industrial index rose 9.15 points to 926.83.

BOMBAY: Heavy institutional buying helped shares recover but business volume was thin and most investors kept to the sidelines on end-account considerations.

FRANKFURT: Shares ended the bourse session mainly lower as a lack of new factors left investors sidelined in an extremely thin market.

ZURICH: Share prices closed slightly higher in very quiet trading after the Easter break as investors awaited fresh impulses from New York. The ali-share Swiss index was 4.1 higher at 816.3 points.

LONDON: Share prices were substantially above the day's lowest levels after a firm opening on Wall Street buoyed sen-timent. At 1530 GMT, the FTSE index was 8.4 points off at

Economic recovery will not come quickly, says bank chief

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone, April 5, (AP): The Governor of Sierra Leone's Central Bank said today a speedy recovery for the national economy could not be expected despite economic reforms undertaken by the government.

"I do not see such progress coming earlier than two years after successfully adopting the right economic prescriptions," Abdul Rahman Turay told an audience at a national trade fair.

In November the government declared an economic emergency to prevent the collapse of the national currency, the leone, and halt a rapid increase in inflation. Domestic business transactions in foreign currency were outlawed, as well as hoarding of currency and essential commodities.

The steady decline of prices for its exports of diamonds and gold, two of the West African country's most important exports, caused a serious foreign exchange shortage, which contributed to the economic crisis. The country's capacity to import raw materials, machinery and spare parts was weakened.

Sierra Leone, Turay said, was trying to meet the demands for economic reform set by the International Monetary Fund, "taking into account the resultant social costs."

The country has resisted IMF encouragement to further devalue the leone and ease subsidies on petrol and rice. The IMF and Sierra Leone are negotiating a new package of economic reforms.

"In order not to be isolated from the larger world economic community, we have to show that we are willing and capable of taking the decisions necessary to salvage our economy," Turay

AUGUSTA, Georgia, April 5. (AP): Sandy Lyle took a day off relaxing and shopping before getting down to work for the 52nd Masters.

But a cursory prowl through Augusta's shopping malls failed to produce one item he was seek-

"I don't have a green jacket in my wardrobe," the Scot said. Maybe I can pick one up this

Lyle's chance of acquiring the famed green jacket that goes to the winner of the Masters, the first of the year's four big golf tournaments, was enhanced by his playoff triumph at Greensboro on Sunday

Confidence But it also took its toll. "It took a lot out of me," Lyle ssid. "Having a three-shot lead, then losing it, then fighting back, it was steamy out there. But the day off (yesterday) and some gentle practice the next few days should see me right," he said, in anticipation of the start of the tournament on Thursday at the Augusta National Golf club course

"I'm playing well now. My confidence is veyr high. Every-thing seems to be in order," he said. "And with the small field, about 50 pros who can win as opposed to the 100 in other tournaments, that improves the odds.

Lyle's second victory of the season opened other possibilities for him, possibilities such as becoming the first British player to take the American money winning title. Lyle leads with $408,021.

"I don't expect to change things much. I'll stick to my plan, 15 or 16 tournaments in the States," said Lyle, who already has played in nine American Tour events this season. "I have commitments in Europe that I must meet. And that is my home circuit. I must play nine tournaments there. And with 15 or 16 in the States. that's a full schedule," said Lyle, who will return to Europe after next week's heritage classic.

At the moment, however, his focus is on the elite, Invitational Masters field of 91.

With the shift in golf's balance of power in recent years, much of his most formidable opposition is contained in the 15 entrants from outside the United States.

Chief among them are Seve Ballesteros of Spain and Greg Norman of Australia, both play off losers to Larry Mize in last year's Masters, along with Ian Woosnam of Wales, winner of more than $1.8 million in worldwide earnings last season, and 1985 Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany.

Roche returns to racing

MONTLHERY, France, April 5. (UPI): World cycling champion Stephen Roche returned to racing yesterday for the first time since a knee surgery in November and said he felt fine after completing nearly three-quarters of a 138-kilometre race on an

"I feel very good. I have minor leg cramps but that's a bad habit of mine," said the Irish cyclist, who told officials of his Fagor team that his knee felt fine after the race.

Roche had not participated in a race since November, when he underwent surgery on his left knee in a clinic near Paris. Though he dismissed the operation as minor, it forced him to undergo extensive physical therapy and kept him from racing until yesterday.

He made a surprise appearance at the Paris-Nice race in early March, but dropped out after the prologue because the knee "was still tender." Roche told Fagor officials yes-

On a night of six semifinals in the continent's three major club competitions, the meeting of the favourites, who have not won the trophy for 22 years, and the most free-scoring team in Europe, will be the outstanding match.
